

The Foggy Dew

Irish Traditional

1 Am 2 G

1. A- s down the glen one Eas- ter morn to a
 2. Ri- ght proud- ly high o- ver Du- blin town the- y
 3. 'Twas Bri- tann- ia bade ou- r wild geese go tha- t
 4. But the bra- ve- st fell and the re- quiem bell ra- ng

3 Am G 4 Am 5

ci - ty fair rode I. The- re ar- med lines of hu- ng out the flag of war. 'Twas bet- ter to die 'neath an sma- ll na- tions might be free. But their lon- ely graves are by mo- urn- ful - ly and clear. For those who died tha- t

6 G 7 Am G 8 Am

mar- ching men in squa - dro- ns passed me by. No
 I- rish sky than at Su - vla or Sud El Bar. A- nd Su- vla's waves or the sho- res of the great North Sea. Oh Eas- ter- tide in the sprin- g- ti- me of the year. And the

9 C 10 G Em 11 Am

pipe did hum no ba- ttle drum did sound its dre- ad ful tat-from the plains of Ro- yal Meath stro- ng men ca- me hur - ry- ing hat they died by Pe- arse's side or had fought wi- th Ca - thal Bruworld did gaze in deep a- maze at those fear- le- ss men but

12 G 13 Am 14 G

too. But the An- gel- us bell's o'er the Lif- fey's swell ra- ng through. While Bri- tan- nia- 's Huns with there long- range guns sa- iled gha. The- ir names we would keep where the Fe- nians sleep 'neath the few. Who bore the fight that free- dom's light mi- ght

15 Am G 16 Am

out thro- ugh the fog- gy dew.
 in thro- ugh the fog- gy dew.
 shro- ud of the fog- gy dew.
 shi- ne thro- ugh the fog- gy dew.

Diese bewegende Ballade befasst sich mit dem Oster-Aufstand von 1916 in Dublin Urversion 1919 von Reverend Canon Charles O'Neill, kath. Priester im County Down Arrangement: «The Dubliners» 1966
 Satz: Bertie A. Lemmenmeier, 11.5.2005